LOVE AND TELEGRAPH.

From the shores of Heart's Content
A maiden looked out on the sea;
"Oh! if I were but rich," said she,
As the messages came and went,
"How happy I then might be;
But no use is the cable to me."
To a sigh by the winds she sent
And the winds they carried it free.

But the maiden mused on still,
"It would cost a fortune a line;
Yet, oh! if that fortune was mine,
What a message of love I'd fill—
Just nine little words, 'I am thine,'
And, 'art thou, dear Willie, still mine?'
What a comfort would be to Will,"
And a tear dropped into the brine.

From a bluff on the English shore,
Lover Will looked out on the main;
At his heart was a restless pain,
That he never had felt before.
Ah! well might he try in vain,
To feel like himself again,
Who had plighted his troth of yore,
And now broken his troth in vain.

"She'll know it sometime," said he,
That I've taken another bride,
For the secret I cannot hide;
But no message she'll get from me.
I'll trust to her maiden pride,
And her scorn, whatever betide,
She'll soon cease to think about me,
And he threw a ring into the tide.

Thus waited the maid each day,
But no tidings to her was sent,
Though the messages came and went,
And the ships rode into the bay.
On her cheeks the lilies blent,
With the roses that love had lent,
And the maid was no longer gay,
Though dwelling at heart's Content.

The old drama of love and wrong,
The old story of false and true,
Though to her it seemed so new,
And the weary days so long,
Yet the weary may come to woo,
And she may forget 'tis true;
But farewell to first love's faith-song
For another may prove false too.

A Reminiscence of the War.

BY A GAY CAVALIER.

Rogersville is situated in Hawkins county, East Tennessee. It is celebrated for its romantic scenery, impacted as it were between the Cumberland and Chimney top mountains.

In the spring of 1863, Gen. Pegram's command was ordered to this place, preparatory to a raid into Kentucky. Having been absent from my home since the spring of '61, I repaired to the point of rendezvous.

On reaching it, a gallant Captain informed me, there would be a grand ball that night at Todd's high school for the benefit of the command. Immediately arranging our toilet, we bounded off in cavalier style, buoyant with the hope of meeting fair and familiar faces before departing on the expected raid.

'Twas, here we first met the beautiful and accomplished poetess, SAN SOU, of whom we read so much in the "papers." Also, Miss L. P., a finished and most beautiful East Tennessean. We could hardly credit the fact of her being a native of a region so wild and traduced, as poor misguided and down-trodden East Tennessee. Governed as she is, by such a fiend as Brownlow, we sympathize with her and pray she may soon have a Godly sovereign.

Thinking our debut perfectly brilliant, we never felt better save once, when we accompanied an officer into a small hamlet to demand a surrender, and taking possession of a well constructed bar, whilst he was arranging the terms, delt out consolation to my wearied comrades.

The command remained but a brief time at Rogersville, before receiving orders.

'Twas then my heart felt heated and unsatisfied, and the cold chills ran up and down my back like a lizard upon a fence rail with a turkey hen after it; we never expected to again meet either the belle of Tennessee, or the charming authoress, SAN SOU. But for once in my natural life, things took a propitious "shoot;" we were ordered to Greenville, and on reaching the depot, saw Miss L. P., slightly lifting my English hunting hat by way of salute, we jumped aboard the train and saw her no more until arriving at the point of destination. Fortunately we stopped at the same house. Here lived one of the best women 'twas my lot to meet while soldiering. She was of middle height, with brunette complexion, large black eyes that illumined a combination of features which made my heart grow fonder of the sex she represented.

At her house, we slightly angled Miss L. P., but like a cautious cavalier looked to see if there were any gaps down for escape. Our interview was short, too sweet to last. On the next day, we "set out" to a dining nine miles in the country. We arrived safely at Mr. A.—s, but were there only long enough to interchange compliments and prepare for the repast, when a dirt-begrimmed messenger came in hot haste with a dispatch for my fascinating companion. It read thus:—Come home immediately, your brother lies at the point of death. Your Uncle, "If you have tears, prepare to shed them now." She immediately drifted into paroxysms and whilst writhing in their embrace, the company quickly decided she was too weak to return to Greenville horse-back. 'Twas agreed that I should drive the buggy in which "here's your mule." We started—she in tears, the mule in shafts, and myself in a peck of trouble. Being unacquainted with the road, the mule of course went the wrong way, and finally drew up where he had formerly lived "nary peg" further could he be persuaded to go, till alighting and shouldering a fence rail, I ran against him with the force of a sledge hammer, taking him in the vicinity of the hypogastrie region. Then he moved and carried us in due time to Greenville. (Par.) At this point my fair and sad companion remarked if she had company she would take the evening train for home.

Like a true soldier, I volunteered my services, with the understanding that she should meet me at the depot—that I could not attend her there, being compelled to see some friend and request him to assume my other duties. Now to be frank, I greatly desired to negotiate a loan with some friend. How liberal it was in me to make such an engagement without the requisite to go upon! A noble comrade was soon found, who parted with a Fifty, payable when I got the "stuff," or when our independence was declared. Agreeable to promise, I was promptly on hand. The train was due at 2 o'clock. At one, our gay companion bade us good evening, believing we would be off in an hour, but the train fell from the track, and we were left to while-away the live-long night in a dreary reception room at a Depot. Tired, nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep, had not visited my eyes for three nights, and being a man of ruddy cheeks and alike eyes, my appearance can be easily imagined. However I soon fell asleep and on the early morn, was awakened from my sweetly dreaming, by the touch of the symmetrical finger of Miss L. P., who informed me breakfast was ready and the cars had not yet arrived. Dilating my eyes, I went for some essence of corn, to invigorate me for the day's travel. The cars came precisely at 10 o'clock, we went aboard with tickets for Rogersville junction. At Midway, the freight train was off the track. This prevented the usual connection being made. Upon reaching the junction, my fair charge, was persuaded to take a room and indulge her pretty "two" eyes in slumber, until a conveyance to Rogersville was procured. After making a detour in the neighborhood, I returned unsuccessful and thoroughly exhausted. Approaching a group of citizens, I presented an historic face, moving the sympathy of a gallant son of "Cork," who tendered his services with a hand-car. Having her trunk placed snugly aboard—its broad top covered with my old army blanket, I bled to her room upon lightest toe, least I might scare the angel, that was keeping vigil. Here reposed the most innocent beauty, that ever gladdened my vision. She was an orphan girl, whose parents died ere she had learned to audibly lip their names. Her young heart, though loaded with grief, had wandered into dreamland and found solace. Upon touching the glossy raven locks that had entwined themselves about her neck of snow, she lifted her large and beautiful blue eyes to Heaven, languid from loss of sleep and deep-seated trouble from her early infancy. "Have you obtained any conveyance?" she asked. Methinks I can hear the undulating murmur now. It steals upon my ear like the ocean wave upon the beach—kisses the shell and goes back to the deep. "Yes," said I, "the car is ready." Soon we were standing upon the platform. Seeing the hand-car she exclaimed, "I will not do to venture upon so frail a craft. 'There is a railroad man' said I 'who says 'tis perfectly secure, and you need not hesitate to venture.'"

'Is it safe, sir," she asked of Emerald Islander. "Yes, be-jesus," was the ready response. Then latching our bark, we passed, meteor-like, athwart the platform, and vigorously working our hands continued to move rapidly. Rogersville was reached on the third day of July, 1863. On the fourth, we took up our line of march for her uncles—which was sixteen miles up the Holston—Ah! well! I remember the sultry rays of the sun—that stole through the forest, as we wandered along the banks—it fell in mellowest gleams upon the laughing waves. We reached "Uncles" at eleven o'clock—her Brother was dead—and 'twas here we first received the news that General Pemberton had surrendered Vicksburg—Our hearts were alike sad—There we separated and met in the wilds of the Old Dominion upon the heels of the Revolution.

Respectfully &c,
VALE.

Ultraism--Radicalism.

In physics the two extremes of all great circles must ever meet, at the same point. In political and religious circles it is pretty much the same. Two ultraisms of opposite and different opinions when thoroughly examined, are often found to differ in scarcely any thing but mere name. Quixotic like they waste their strength, time and talents fighting each others shadow while the real substance is lost sight of by both. Like the worried and dying whale they beat the mere surface and spout forth their venom in each others faces. Like the emissions of the asp and toad their language is all poison, slime and confusion.

They seldom ever attempt to fathom each others principals with that kindness and good feeling which characterizes the good citizen and good neighbor; and if they do, and get to understand them; it is not for the noble purposes of convincing each other of their errors and dealing out charity in that tone which is calculated to produce beneficial results upon their feelings and morals; but right the contrary; nearly always for the purpose of showing their wit and tact in argument; denouncing rather than convincing; of abusing rather than reforming.

To gain a triumph without a victory; a victory without a conquest; a conquest without subjugation; subjection without obedience; and obedience without a change.

They commence without premises, proceed without rules, overcome by storming, and end in confusion; ignorance; darkness, and enmity.

They most generally begin with an assertion and end with an insult, without either reason or good manners intervening. Without the least concession or compromise.

Whenever one is caught in such company, he always gains a considerable victory by giving up the field of argument unconditionally and retiring immediately.

This is the sum total of ultraism--radicalism.

There is, perhaps, no folly that is more prevalent among mankind; or that has produced a greater quantity of selfishness in the world; or that is more dilatorious to society, prosperity, and human happiness than this; and yet there is none that is more tenaciously adhered to by all classes.

It is this that produces an alienation of feeling—an alienation of sentiment—an alienation of feeling, and finally a desire of separation, which, at this stage must be permitted or a violent collision will ensue.

This is the true practical working of ultraism--radicalism; no matter where it is found to exist—whether in families; in neighbourhoods;—among States; or even in a nation.

When the members of a community; no matter whether great or small; whether religious or political, arrive at such a tone of feeling they must be permitted to depart from each other as Abram and Lott did—secede if you choose and work out there destiny in their own way, or else their peace, prosperity, happiness, morality and liberty, are all at an end, and master and slave will be created and introduced.

When will all men be wise and useful? Whenever all men learn to have charity tempered with justice, honor and good manners.

Can that be so long as they are allowed to carry noses on their faces? Cut them off, the misfortune and deformity will teach them all to have charity.

Observer.

A man named Arden Knight was arrested in Winchester, Columbianna county, Ohio, a day or two since, upon the charge of having three wives. Four or five years ago he married a lady in Alliance, and shortly after was united to Miss Anna Fife, of Cleveland. He next went to Illinois and espoused No. 3. He is in jail at Cleveland, where all three of his wives are "wailing for the verdict."

Monthly Fashion Reports.

MARCH.

Winter seems to cling so lovingly to us that spring fashions are scarcely thought of yet, and probably will not be decided upon for some weeks to come.

Short dresses, which have caused so much perturbation in the feminine world, have now become almost indispensable. They grow shorter and shorter; though the upper skirt is short, the petticoat is of a suitable length.

The distinction between street and indoor dresses is becoming more and more widely marked; narrow gored dresses with immensely long trails, and therefore very wide at the bottom, are the style for house wear, and especially for grand toilets, while the dresses for the street are daily becoming shorter.

The short dresses proper are altogether made en suite, and are generally confined to young ladies, upon whom they are pretty, coquettish, and becoming.

Open sleeves are made to wear with the sacques for short dresses almost exclusively, the long, tight sleeves being attached to the dress, and frequently having a puff placed on the top, which, with the narrow skirt, gives a quaint effect.

Belts are made as much as ever, and the length of the waist does not vary from last season.

The newest black lace veils are flushed on the edge with long points, which are trimmed with tassels of jet or straw.

Shawls must never be worn with short dresses; they are not at all in keeping with this style of costume.

Braided morning dresses will be very fashionable during the coming summer, and ladies who wish to display them at the seaside or other resorts will find the leisure of Lent favorable to their elaborate ornamentation.

Older and more matronly women find such a costume awkward, and anything but graceful, and generally prefer more amplitude of drapery, especially as the Benoiton dress-loops afford them an elegant and decorative means of raising their skirts out of the debris of the streets.

The wide and tilting hoops, which for a time were universal, have now entirely disappeared, or are seen only among the class of domestic servants who fall heir to the cast off garments of their mistresses.

Peplums continue in favor. Sleeves are still of the coat shape, and quite close; some are varied by having full puff at the shoulder formed of alternate stripes of velvet and the dress material.

The bonnets are all quite small. Some are the fanchon shape, turned up in front in the coronet style; others, again, have flat crowns, while the Eve hat is composed of a single leaf, trimmed round with a feather or bead fringe. Others, again, of the Watteau style, no larger than the palm of the hand, and tied under the chin with broad satin strings.

Black bonnets are frequently trimmed with drops and studs of amber. When happily arranged, the effect is very good, but they are only suited for evening and carriage wear. Another fashionable ornament for black bonnets is mother of pearl. Some are studded with stars formed of mother of pearl, and have a fringe of the same on the edge.

The latest novelty, however, in the bonnet line is star-shaped, and has eight points. It is of velvet crape over violet silk, is richly embroidered with straw, and has a straw tassel depending from each point. At the head of the strings are tufts of violets mixed with puffing of violet crepe lisse and fancy ornaments of straw.

A charming little floral ceinture or girdle has just been introduced. It is composed of bands of ribbon grass encircling the waist, and fastened in front by a tuft of large, field daisies, while fancy grasses, reeds, and leaves of various tints depend from the girdle all around the waist.

A very convenient style of hoops skirt is of muslin, with steel run in. It is so arranged that it may be worn with a short walking-dress or a trained evening dress, by adding or removing an extra trained piece, which may be buttoned on in a few moments.

At a religious meeting, a lady persevered in standing on a bench, and thus intercepting the view of others, though repeatedly requested to sit down. A reverend old gentleman at last rose, and said, gravely, "I think if the lady knew she had a large hole in each of her stockings, she would not exhibit them in this way." This had the desired effect, she immediately sunk down into her seat. A young minister standing by, blushed to the temples, and said, "O brother, how could you say what was not the fact?" "Not the fact?" replied the old gentleman; "if she had not a large hole in each of her stockings, I should like to know how she gets them on?"

The Vienna journals relate a dramatic incident at a recent masked ball in that city. A young couple, finding their steps constantly dogged by a female figure in a black domino, were about to leave the theater in order to escape from the espionage, when the stranger placed herself before them, and dashed a vial of vitrol in the face of the gentleman. The domino on being arrested and unmasked proved to be a lady belonging to the aristocracy, and the wife of the young man whom she had thus disfigured; she had also just obtained a judicial separation from him. The face and neck of the husband were horribly burnt, and one eye was completely destroyed. The domino had also spilled so much of the liquid on her arm and hand that amputation became necessary.

The "false bosoms" of New York females are said to be made of bird seed. The news says; "by the manner of its use it will deceive the most wary. It is said to be enclosed in small bags adapted to the proper size and shape, attached in some peculiar way to the underlining so that at the motion of the body the bag of bird seed moves so as to resemble very much the living flesh." The deception can only be detected by the feel.

A boy was caught in the act of stealing Cried berries in front of a store, the other day, and was locked up in a closet by the grocer. The boy commenced begging most pathetically to be released, and after using all the persuasion that his young imagination could invent, proposed, "Now, if you'll let me out, and send for my daddy, he'll pay you for them, and lick me besides." This appeal was too much for the grocer to stand out against.

The Evening Leader, is the title of a new black-and-tan sheet just started in Washington. We learn from it that they have a nigger poet in Washington. We suggest he be made poet laureate of Congress, at a liberal pension from the Negro Beavro.

The Illinois Legislature has passed a law giving juries the power to fix the punishment of capital crimes—making it death, imprisonment for life, or fourteen years, at their discretion.

The Supreme Court of Alabama has decided that the emancipation proclamation of President Lincoln did not take effect in that State until May 1865.

T. L. JONES,
of Campbell.

After many days of inquiry and consultation, we find that the people of Harrison are pleased with the candidates which have been presented for their suffrages, by the democratic conventions of the State and district; and laying all personal considerations aside, they will with no other motives than those which actuate patriots, and well wishers of their country, give their votes for the furtherance of democratic principles, democratic ideas, democratic candidates.

When great democratic ideas, are opposed with such earnestness as is exhibited by the radicals—when the great constitutional rights secured to us by our fore-fathers—to wit: life, liberty, and property, are so seriously menaced as at present, by those who assert their power by the passage of laws for their destruction, it then behooves every man, to sink his own personal notions for his, and his country's good, and prove by his vote that his actions are governed by his principles, and that his principles are founded on right and justice.

The government of our common country is based upon right and justice, and the ground work of democracy is built upon these two pillars, and the man, who has those ideas well set in his head and heart will work accordingly. A stern determination to adhere to the democratic party and to its principles, and exponents, will lead us to prosperity and happiness. In this world it has always been difficult for men to do right. It oftentimes occurs that ones life-boat should sail against the current as well as against the wind to keep in the right path. Then a spirit of determined sternness, and self denial is necessary. The Christian fully understands this principle—and no discouragement, no dark clouds, no tempestuous storms should turn us back. No threatening menace, or surrounding multitude opposing should affect the onward strides of a sound democrat. The bright star of Hope is just rising above the eastern horizon, and while a cheerfulness overshadows us at its sight, let us renew our strength with a new and strong resolution, never to give up the ship but to contend for the right, as long as one ray of that Star can be seen.

The triumph of our principles in this State is a fixed fact, for the triumph of the democratic party, if moral suasion and reason only is used, is certain. Let our actions as individuals, and demeanor as a party, be such, that our enemies cannot without detriment to the general weal, send troops and bayonets for our intimidation. Give them no cause for even an excuse for such a move, and the expected military will never come.

The country has been threatened with soldiers, but it is to be hoped they will never appear. If they do come, we fear very much that persecution and oppression will come with them. The steady old democrats of Harrison have withstood many heavy storms, within the last twelve years, and they may be called upon to undergo many more, but be firm to principle. Democrats are not the only people that have been persecuted for the sake of principle, and finally triumphed. Let us hope, and look for the good time coming, when men will be governed by reason not passion.

The Memphis Post says that notwithstanding the ill success of cotton planters last year, the country around that city is alive with preparations for the coming season. In some districts there may be less land under cultivation this year than last, but, on the whole, in West Tennessee, Arkansas, North Mississippi, and North Alabama there will be considerably more planted. The same scarcity of hands and the difficulty in obtaining them is complained of. Numbers are visiting or sending agents to Georgia and North and South Carolina to procure them. Not more than half of the planters will have as many as they wish. The colored people have been so much better treated in Tennessee than any of the surrounding States, that they will hire to Tennesseans at less wages than to others. Their enfranchisement will now add largely to laboring population of Tennessee at the expense of the adjoining States.

The Radical Legislature of Ohio has just voted down a proposition to strike the word "white" from their State Constitution—thus refusing to allow negroes the privileges that they are in favor of forcing the Southern States to allow them. They are for negro suffrage in the South, but not in the North. The simple reason is this: They think they have the Northern States secure without the aid of negro suffrage; but it is necessary to confer upon them the right of suffrage in the Southern States, in order to secure these States to Radicalism. They care nothing for the negro, only so far as they can use them for partisan purposes.

MILLINERY.—We call the attention of our readers to the spring opening of elegant millinery and straw goods, advertised in this paper, by the old reliable and cheap house of Devou & Co., 83 and 85 Pearl street, Cincinnati. This is one of the oldest establishments in the West, and long experience and wealth enables them to sell goods very low, and keep up an elegant assortment by continual importations.

The mortgage of the Lexington and Louisville Railroad, by which they secure the bond-holders for the money necessary to complete the Cincinnati branch road, has been filed in the Kenton County Clerk's office, and it has attached to it fifteen United States revenue stamps, each of the denomination of $200, or an aggregate of $3,000.

John A. Bingham, one of the Radical Congressmen from Ohio, made a good point, the other day, against Thaddeus Stevens and those of his followers who are intent upon dealing with the ten Southern States as conquered territories. He said that he was not going to yield to the proposition of Mr. Stevens, that one rood of territory, embraced within the lines of ten States, was conquered territory, that "a Government did not conquer territory that owed it allegiance." That's a point that is very difficult to get over or around or through.

Gen. Grant, on good authority, is reported as saying he regarded the re-construction bill as very unwise legislation. All the members of the Cabinet, with one exception, are opposed to the bill.

Jesse D. Bright, formerly a Senator in Congress from Indiana, and now a resident of our State, in reply to a call to become a candidate for Congress, says:—

I could not be induced to take a seat among such men as constitute the already elected majority in the next House of Representatives in Congress.

There were thirty-seven newspapers in this country at the beginning of the revolutionary war. Twenty-three stood by Congress, eight by King George, and the rest were neutral.

Who Are and Who Are not Affected by the Military Reconstruction Bill.

It is a matter of some importance to the people of the South to know who are and who are not affected by the Military Reconstruction Bill, passed by Congress over the veto of the President. The law itself has a double character. It establishes, in the first place, a complete military despotism over the unrepresented States. In the second place, provision is made for the reconstruction of those States. It is in this latter division that are found the provisions affecting particular classes of individuals, curtailing the rights of some and enlarging those of others. They relate to holding office and voting.

HOLDING OFFICE.

The following persons are forbidden to hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, or under any Provisional State Government, or to be a member of any convention to form a new State Constitution, who took an oath or affirmation to support the Constitution of the United States and afterward engaged in the rebellion, or gave aid and comfort to those who did, viz:

1st. Senators and Representatives in Congress, officers of the army or navy, and other United States officials.

2d. Governors of States, members of State Legislatures, and State judicial officers, from judges down to magistrates.

No one is excluded from holding an office who does not belong to one of the above classes.

VOTING.

All male citizens twenty-one years old and upward, of whatever race, color, or previous condition, who have been resident in said State for one year previous to the day of election, shall be entitled to vote, except the following persons, viz:

1. Such as may be disfranchised for participation in the rebellion.

2. Such as may be disfranchised for crime.

3. Such as (above enumerated) are forbidden to hold office, are also forbidden to vote for members to a Convention to form a Constitution under the provisions of this bill, and also for officers under the Provisional State Governments.

HOLDING OFFICE AND VOTING.

No person is disqualified from holding office by reason of any part he took in the rebellion, either in holding office under the Confederate Government, or in bearing arms, who had not previous to the war held a Federal office, or an executive, legislative, or judicial office in some State.

No person is disqualified from voting by reason of any part he took in the rebellion, either in holding office or in bearing arms, except those who are disqualified from holding office, as above stated, and they are disqualified from voting in two cases only: first, for members of the Constitutional Convention; and, second, for officers under the Provisional State Government.

As no person under twenty-one years of age was allowed to hold any Federal office, or any State executive, legislative or judicial office, and as the war commenced six years ago, no man in the South under twenty-seven years of age can be excluded from holding office or voting, by reason of any part he took in the rebellion.

[From the Shelby Sentinel.]

Rev. Elisha Stratton sold his farm near Eminence, to Judge J. L. Hill. It contained one hundred and six acres, and sold at seventy-five dollars per acre.

J. C. Ireland, of Eminence, bought the best lot of sheep in Shelby county, from W. L. Wadley and J. M. Hackworth. The average weight, one hundred and thirty-seven and a half pounds per head, two hundred and fifty in the lot. He has also bought eighteen head of cattle, averaging one thousand five hundred and twenty-six pounds per head.

There was a large turnpike meeting at Eminence last Saturday, to consider the subject of subscribing stock to the pike to be made from the Smithfield road to Eminence. The meeting was a success, as most of the money was subscribed.

The remains of Wm. Briscoe, of Miss., which had been deposited in the city vault of Louisville for several months past, were brought up on Friday last and interred in the Cemetery at Eminence.

We understand a Deputy U. S. Marshal was in town on last Thursday, for the purpose of summoning certain individuals to appear before the Federal Court, at Louisville, who were supposed to have formed the acquaintance of that famous individual, yeelap "Judge Lynch."—Danville Advocate.

Why Women Can Not Enter Masonic Lodges.

Frequent complaints are made by ladies in relation to Masonry, and their principal arguments are that their husbands have no business to do any thing that they can not tell their wives—that that which is secret must be wrong—that it is only a mean excuse, and so on. One branch of the subject seems, however, to be capable of legendary explanation, and the Norfolk Journal publishes thereon the following paragraph:

When King Solomon was still a young man he had married his seventh wife. She was a beautiful young Ammonitess, with locks as black as the raven's wing and eyes as bright as the eagle's. It was believed that she was the favored fair one among all the sultanas of the Greek King, for his affections were not divided then as they afterward became. She knew her power; and used it unsparingly. In addition to her other qualities, she was as inquisitive as ever was a woman on this earth.

One evening King Solomon attended lodge on some grand occasion, and staid out somewhat late. When he returned home, he found the fair Ammonitess in the dumps, and pouting just like the dear wives of Masons do sometimes now when their lords stay out too late at the lodge. She upbraided him with neglecting her, insinuated that he hadn't been to the lodge as he pretended, and insisted that in future he should give proof that he went there by having herself initiated, so that she might go there and watch him.

"Daughter of Ammon," replied the King, "thou hast behaved thyself as one of the foolish women, in presuming to question thy lord and master."

"Thou art not so angry with me as thou pretendest to be; for the true reason of this behavior is thy insatiable curiosity, in which thou excellest Eve herself. Know, then, that I hereby order that neither thou nor any of thy inquisitive sex after thee, ever enter the portals of a Masonic Lodge; but I shall enjoin the Tyler to pierce through with his sword any woman that shall attempt to enter a lodge, ay, even thee Queen of Israel though thou be!" And that ordinance of that wisest of monarchs has continued in force till this day.

Gen. Hood.—Gen. Hood was in our city upon Monday, on his way from his old home in Montgomery County to New Orleans. He was warmly welcomed by those who knew him, some of whom had served under him. We regret that he had to walk upon crutches. There never lived a more dashing soldier, a more gallant leader, a more knightly foe, or kindly honorable gentleman. With true manhood he has lately refused the generous offers of his Texan friends, saying he could earn his living, and begged that the gifts intended for him might be given to others equally as deserving and more needy.—Obs. & Rep.

An exchange says: "At the battle of the Wilderness a young Mississippian had fallen, and at night, just as they were burying him, there came a letter from her he loved best. One of group around his body, a minister, whose tenderness was womanly, broke the silent tearfulness with which he saw the dead letter; he took it and laid it on the heart of him whose heart was still: 'Bury it with him. He will see it when he wakes.' It was the sublimest sentiment in the funeral service."

There has been a tremendous revival at Crawfordville, Indiana. Since the first of January 358 persons have connected themselves with the various churches, of which, as usual, the Methodists get the largest share, viz: 168, while the Christians (or Campbellites) get 75, New School Presbyterians 86, Old School 19, Baptist 3, and Episcopalians 7. The excitement is very great, meetings being held in the four largest churches twice a day, and a general prayer meeting besides. Crowds gather in the streets and on the corners to talk about religion, and even in the saloons it is the subject of conversation.

"What is the reason that men never kiss each other, while ladies waste a world of kisses on feminine faces?" said a foolish gent to a lively girl the other day. "Because the men have something better to kiss, and women haven't." was the reply of the young lady. The gent "saw it" immediately.

A terrible earthquake has taken place at Mytelone, by which hundreds of lives were lost.

Blue Grass Farm FOR SALE.

THE Farm on which I now reside is for sale. It is situated four miles south of Cynthiana, half a mile from Lair's Station on the Kentucky C. R. Road, at which place there is a post office, express office, depot, saw mill and two excellent grist mills that manufacture the best quality of flour and meal. It is within 3 hours ride of Cincinnati 1 1/2 of Lexington. It contains about 175 Acres, one hundred acres well timbered, nicely cleared up and set in blue grass. The remainder cleared and in the highest state of cultivation. The fencing all in good order. The improvements consists of a comfortable dwelling, partly frame and partly log, weatherboarded and plastered and painted, containing six rooms, cook-house and all necessary out buildings including two large stables, (with lofts for feed) large enough to house and feed 75 mules at a time which can be done without going out doors as there is large wide feed rooms extending the whole length of the stables in which there is a cutting box run by horse power, with capacity and strength enough to cut a large quantity of provender in a short time. There is also a young orchard of select fruit of various kinds now bearing. The farm is supplied with abundance of pure water for all purposes as there is upon it a number of never failing springs (come from their near the dwelling) & South Licking which runs along one side of it. Any one wishing to purchase such a farm would do well to call and examine for himself as the place will be sold for a reasonable price, the payments made easy and if desired a part of the money can be run a considerable length of time at moderate interest.
I also desire to sell 400 acres of Land which lies in Lewis county Missouri. Said land is situated about 12 miles from Palmyra on the road leading from there to Monticello and about 16 miles from the Mississippi river, about one half of it timbered land, the timber excellent, the balance prairie of good quality, a little rolling & dry. It is a good neighborhood, & is surrounded by old settlers and finely improved farms. There is a large handsome brick church & school house in sight of the land. Also, a small village & post office near by. Price reasonable, payments easy & made to suit the ability & convenience of purchasers. For further particulars call on

KENTUCKY MUSIC!

H. A. SEXTON'S
Cornet, Orchestra and Quadrille Band,
Sexton, Jr., Lexington, Ky.
CORNET, Orchestra, & Quadrille Band from one to twenty-five ever ready to serve the people of Kentucky in the art of Instrumental and vocal music, when good music is wanted. We court competition in vocal and instrumental music for Fairs, Barbecues, Pic-Nics, Balls, Parties, Serenades, with a good set of instruments, a fine set of uniforms &c. We think a clever set of Kentuckians asks your patronage. Give us a call and convince yourself. Address,
HENRY A. SEXTON,
Lexington, Ky.
